

A Message to Parents and Guardians

As I prepare to retire this mid-term, I wish to express my sincere gratitude to all parents and guardians of Drumshanbo Vocational School.

It has been an honour and a privilege to serve as Principal since 2006. During that time, building on the past, I have seen our school grow into a vibrant, inclusive, and forward-looking community — a development made possible through your constant support, trust, and cooperation.

I am immensely proud of our students, our dedicated, caring staff, and the strong sense of community that defines Drumshanbo Vocational School. I will certainly miss all of that. The sanctioning of our new school extension, with the site purchased and building work hopefully to begin before too long, marks an exciting new chapter in the school's development and will provide more opportunities for future generations in this MSLETB school.

As I step down, I am pleased to welcome Mr. Declan Conboy as the incoming Principal. Together with our exceptional Deputy Principal, Ms. Siobhán Evans, with the support of our committed Board of Management, I have every confidence that the school will continue to flourish under their capable and committed leadership.

Thank you all for your support and for the privilege of serving as your Principal. It has been a deeply rewarding journey, and I will always remain proud of what we have achieved together as a school community.

Best regards
